Chinggis Khaan Statue:

In 2008, a gigantic statue of Genghis Khan riding on horseback was erected on the bank of the Tuul River at Tsonjin Boldog, 54 km east of the Mongolian capital Ulaanbaatar, where according to legend, he found a golden whip. The statue is 40 meters tall and wrapped in 250 tons of gleaming stainless steel. It stands on top of the Chinggis Khaan Statue Complex, a visitor center that itself is 10 meters tall, with 36 columns representing the 36 khans from Genghis to Ligden Khan. The statue is symbolically pointed east towards his birthplace.

Inside the two-story base of the statue, visitors can see a replica of Chinggis Khaan's legendary golden whip, sample traditional cuisine of horse meat and potatoes. Visitors can ascend to the exhibition hall using an elevator at the back of the horse and then walk to the horse's head passing through its chest and the back of its neck from where they can have an excellent panoramic view over the park area and the scenery beyond.

The Chinggis Khaan Statue is currently the biggest equestrian statue in the world.
